The condition of the common roads of our country is the proverbial weak-ness of our boasted American civiliza-

In the report of the Department of Agriculture for the year of 1888 the commissioner says:

"The common roads of the country are the veins and arteries through the life blood of the nation to those great ducts of travel and transporta-

ed the chief cause of the present condi-tion of our public highways. The skill and energy of our people have been expended on the railroads to the neglect of our common reads. We have lost sight of the fact that the public highways form a very important part of the means for transportation and travel. Defective legislation and the rapid settlement of new country, causing a corresponding increase of roads, are also causes which have contributed considerably toward giving us our present inferior roads.

There is probably no question before the American people to-day which so directly affects their welfare; certainly ADBEATER & SONS Virginia.

wide-spread interest manifested everywhere, and by the intelligent manner in which it is being placed before the public. The reform is growing and spreading and the fruits of the agitation of the question of recent years is being shown in the fact that towns and villages are equiping themselves with rock crushers and improved road machinery and learning the best methods of using them. This is a long step in the right direction, and when all of our people can be convinced that good roads are a benefit to any community morally, socially and financially, then will the success of this great reform be
